DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-9 and 26-28, drawn to a method of modifying plant characteristics comprising the introduction of genes encoding starch synthase into the plant, a nucleic acid construct and a plant, classified in class 800, subclass 278, for example.
- II. Claim 10, drawn to a method of preparing a food product, classified in class 426, subclass 661, for example.
- III. Claims 25 and 29, drawn to a method of producing starch and a plant comprising starch, classified in class 127, subclass 39, for example.

The inventions are independent or distinct, each from the other because:

Inventions I and II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions have different designs, different modes of operation and different effects.

Invention I requires DNA sequences, plant transformation steps and materials not required by the method of Invention II. Invention II requires food preparation steps and materials not required by the method of Invention I. Furthermore, the method of food preparation claimed in Invention II could use plants other than the ones produced by Invention I. For the reasons given above, Inventions I and II are distinct from one another and restriction is therefore proper.

Inventions I and III are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions have different modes of operation.

Invention I requires plant transformation steps and materials not required by Invention III. Invention III requires starch extraction steps not required by Invention I. Furthermore, Invention III could utilize plants that have starch altered by mutagenesis or alternative genetic construct transformation strategies, for example. For the reasons given above, Inventions I and III are distinct from one another and restriction is therefore proper.

Inventions II and III are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions have different designs, different modes of operation and different effects.

Invention II requires food preparation method steps not required by Invention III. Invention III requires starch extraction steps not required by Invention II. Invention II could utilize plant material other than the plant material used by Invention III. Furthermore, the starch of invention III could be used for non-food products such as polymers, or other industrial products, for example. For the reasons given above, Inventions II and III are distinct from one another and restriction is therefore proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
